EXCHANGE PAPERS.—We continue to receive by every mail newspapers containing our little card "To the Public," and asking an exchange. Our offer in that has been long since revoked.

Baltimore and Washington Railroad. Reduction of Fare.

We are gratified at perceiving that the articles we published on this subject, on Saturday last, have been generally read, and are well-approved in this city. We have on hand several other communications, including a very minute review of the history of this company; but as a it, the poor man seems to be at a loss, when spirit of severe censure is evinced by the writer, advance of the public demands in these matters. and, as no very general expression has been ginia on his return to them. And so he is to heretofore given to such demands, we do not be a teacher of the people of the Old Dominion! think the subject should be approached in this Would that he were disinterested enough to spirit. Let facts and their just inferences be resign his Secretaryship forthwith, and start first presented, and we doubt not such reduction out on his teaching mission. The people of Virwill be made as will prove proper and salutary. ginia ought not to remain longer in ignorance miles, is $1.80, or four and a half cents per chusetts, which Mr. Stuart has just now learned. hundred and seventy-eight miles, it is $7.00, or a just as Massachusetts does, may be received by little less than four cents per mile. But on the the people of the Old Dominion as a complifirst of October, the fare to Cumberland is to ment, but we doubt it. They are bound to be reduced to $5, or not quite two and four- know, in spite of all Mr. Stuart may essay to fifths cents per mile! This is a wide difference between the prices of travel upon the two cently been formed a coalition in Massachusetts routes. What is the reason of it?

The revenue in the month of August, we learn, was:

For Passengers. For Freight.
- $33,417 51 $09,254 80
- 20,268 57 3,905 27 $53,686 08 $73,160 07

Making an aggregate of $202,672.31 on the main stem, and $24,178.84 on the Washington branch-the total being $126,846.15. It is thus seen that on both roads the amount received for passengers is equal to about fortyone per cent. of the whole receipts; and for freight, fifty-nine per cent.

The main stem receives for freight more than twice as much as it does for passengers, while the Washington branch receives for passengers more than five times as much as for freight. It will thus be perceived that the chief business of the main stem to Cumberland is the carriage of freight, and of the Washington branch the carriage of passengers. Yet, in the face of the Washington branch, and withholds from it is: the public the accommodations they have a right to expect from it.

amount of money will pay for the transportation of fifteen and a half hundred-weight of freight-equal to eight passengers!

This disparity is very great; and while the high price charged for passage is oppressive upon the public, it is, in our opinion, impolitic on the part of the company. We entertain a very strong conviction that at the usual and fair price of three cents per mile, or $1.20 for the trip, as much or more money would be received as at present ; and that tickets to go and ceived as at present; and that tickets to go and return within a specified time, say forty-eight hours, for $2.00, would materially enhance the profits of the road.

Excellency system at this datalog as the does, with your presence, the establishment of a social and commercial alliance between this city and the Canadas. Lines of intercommunication have been opened, by which the products profits of the road.

Such accommodations would promote the intercourse between the people of the two cities in a progressive ratio, while they would secure to the company their good-will and encouragement.

To continue the present high charges, and evince a disregard for the public convenience, may for a time be done with impunity; but a unfrequently happens that a chartered company rated regions, minister to their mutual wants, has reason to regret the absence of the popular diffuse abroad the means of knowledge, and scatfavor. It is in the power of the company at this moment to prove that it is guided by a liberal and magnanimous spirit; and if it shall make this apparent, we are well convinced the the golden ring which was used in the espousals of Venice will prove the wisdom of the act.

"INCIDENTS IN THE LIFE OF A PASTOR."-The perusal of this volume has afforded us great pleasure. Its author, Dr. Wisner, is a Presbyterian minister, and every Christian who can approve the sentiments of a liberal-minded writer of that denomination should procure a copy of his book. We have rarely seen so instructive or so profitable a work of its kind.

The speech made by the President on Boston Common, just as he was leaving the great dinner table, and while he was too unwell to say anything, was the happiest effort made by him, as we think, during his trip to the North.

Mr. Stuart's speeches seemed to be all failures. Since his famous Richmond speech, and the appearance of the merited strictures upon called upon for a speech, what to say, or how to we deem it but just to withhold it for the pre- say it. But enough of this, for the present. We on Saturday gave the speech of Mayor Bigelow welcoming the President to Boston. It was a beautiful thing, both in sentiment and words. We thought it the best speech of the batch published. But we find another equal to it, delivered by the same eloquent Mayor, to Lord these facts, the company forgoes the chances of Elgin, the Governor General of Canada, who increased travel by means of reduced rates, on was a guest at the great Railway Jubilee. employ a capital of fifty-two millions of dollars, and earn a yearly revenue of above six and a half millions; and thus it is not too much to estimate that one hundred millions of Massachusetts capital have within these brief twenty years been invested in railroads which have their focus in Boston, and well invested too; and this is, on a fair calculation, but one-half of the capital invested in railways in New England. This is why they hold a jubilee there. They are right in doing so. They are right in rejoicing at the completion of a system of public works absolutely unparalleled. We rejoice with them, and feel our Yankee blood tingling in sympathy; for whatever benefits one part of sympathy; for whatever benefits one part of this republic benefits all others. But let us look into the occasion of the jubilee a little

"Massachusetts has a small territory; its area is but 5,000,000 acres, and its population not one million. A rocky and barren soil, an unfriendly climate, and no navigable rivers opening channels to the interior, are the endowments with which old Massachusetts entered on her career. They are not all, however; she had a people unequalled in energy, concentra-tion of purpose, and personal integrity; she had good schools, good laws, a glorious history, and the go-ahead spirit; she had also abundant water-power, the enterprise to use it, and for a time the national policy has favored her. She has built up manufactures, and on that basis stands the admirable example of a State that she now presents; and finally she has erected this great net-work of railways extending in all directions, and bearing from every quarter a willing tribute of prosperity and the means of greatness still more complete and enduring.

"The foreign traffic brought into the State by these channels is by no means the chief benefit they confer on the people. No commonwealth in the world, except it be England, is so covered with lines of railroad, and in none are they so universally and constantly used by all classes. There is not a town in the State with as many as five thousand inhabitants which has not railroad communication with the metropolis; of those with from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants there are scarce half a dozen which are not upon, or in the near vicinity of, some railroad; indeed, it is only necessary to take up a recent map of the State and observe how complete is the net-work, to perceive that there is hardly a neighborhood in its territory which does not hear the shrill whistle of the locomometropolis at the rate of twenty or thirty miles an hour. Over every line there are at least two daily trains to and from Boston, except on Sunday, when, with the exception of perhaps an early morning train, all business is stopped; even steam is made to respect the time-honored habit of the puritans.

"Such is the system of public works whose completion-almost entirely through private enterprise and capital, and without governwhose operation will aggrandize the Bay State, and not fail to benefit her neighbors and fellows in the Republic. No community of ancient or modern times has ever erected for itself a monument of greater utility, or exhibiting more magnificently the power of human genius and

SENATOR DOUGLAS .- The address of this eminent citizen and statesman, before the Agricultural society of the State of New York, on Friday last, is reported at length in the New York Herald of Saturday, and occupies more than four closely printed columns. The practical information it embodies, high as has been our estimate of the general information of the speaker, has truly astonished us, and the sound practical views he expresses on many important subjects are such as to win the admiration of every reader. The peroration was in the following eloquent language:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen: In bringing this discourse to a conclusion, I am not insensible to the magnitude and importance of my theme. I have approached it with diffidence, mands a broader and higher reach of thought than I have found time and opportunity to bring to its elucidation. I have sought at least to show not only the dignity and value of your calling, in its influence over the destiny and elevation of our country, but to enforce the great truth, that a common interest links to-gether, throughout all the diversities of soil, of climate, and of production, the noble fabric of American industry.
"In taking leave of such a theme, let me say that you may well rejoice in your pursuits. You may well rejoice in its triumphs—the peaceful triumphs of labor, of art, and of science. You may recall with pride that illustrious race of cultivators, who, from Cincinnatus to Washington, graced and ennobled agriculture, and which in turn graced and canobled them. You may congratulate yourselves upon the condition and attitude of your society. If, in the rank of American States, New York holds a lofty position, the labors of its State society will be the more widely productive of benian results, not only in promoting and advancing its own husbandry, but its bright example wil be felt in all quarters of the republic. Let me, then, urge you to renewed and unremitted efdischarge of duties to your State and country, which bring with them the blessing of God and modern Athens, having "annexed" Canada to the gratitude of men. As the dews from hea ven refresh and fertilize the earth, and gladder liberally disseminating the seeds of intelligent observatian and experience, bring forth a rich and abundant harvest."

I am sorry to say I am under the gallows, and I hope God will have mercy on my soul—that is all the hope I have got in this world.

The money will therefore be appropriated, according to Mr. Corcoran's desire, to the purchase of agricultural ools and provisions for the journey.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I have on several occaions attended the concerts of the Carneros family, and always found the house crowded. Miss Rosamond's most admired piece is the celebrated "Echo Song." Miss Augusta sings exceeding well, "Why don't the men propose?" "New England" and "Johnny Sands" are the favorite pieces of Miss Adelia. Miss Adelia and Miss Augusta are very amusing in the duetts of "Johnny's Courtship" and "Man and Wife." The quartette, "Old King Cole," was much admired. They also dance very gracefully, and a difficult waltz with Mr. Nichols was wall excepted. The "Varyles Courtship." their well executed. The "Yankee Courtship," their beautiful burlesque, and best piece, was well performed.
